

Statement of participation

Muhammad Farid Wajdi Makkulau

has completed the free course including any mandatory tests for:

How arguments are constructed and used in the Social Sciences

Using extracts from a Radio 4 broadcast, this 1-hour free course explored how arguments are constructed and used in the Social Sciences.

Issue date: 17 September 2025

www.open.edu/openlearn

This statement does not imply the award of credit points nor the conferment of a University Qualification.
This statement confirms that this free course and all mandatory tests were passed by the learner.

Please go to the course on OpenLearn for full details:

<https://www.open.edu/openlearn/society-politics-law/sociology/how-arguments-are-constructed-and-used-the-social-sciences/content-section-0>

COURSE CODE: D218_4

How arguments are constructed and used in the Social Sciences

<https://www.open.edu/openlearn/society-politics-law/sociology/how-arguments-are-constructed-and-used-the-social-sciences/content-section-0>

Course summary

This free course will enable you to understand how arguments are constructed and used in the Social Sciences. Using extracts from a Radio 4 broadcast, you will look at the different viewpoints that are taken by the participants and analyse how the different arguments are being put together.

Learning outcomes

By completing this course, the learner should be able to:

- understand how arguments may be presented in the Social Sciences.

Completed study

The learner has completed the following:

Section 1

How arguments are used in the Social Sciences